Certain nationals are free to travel to Chile with simply their passport (and sometimes only an ID card) for stays of up to 90 days. Nationals of those countries are not required to apply for a Chile visa prior to traveling, but they will receive a Tourist Card from the immigration authorities upon their arrival.

Visa exempt

If you are from one of these countries, you only need a passport, valid for at least six more months, and a return travel ticket to travel to Chile. You can stay in Chile without a visa for up to 90 days.

Visas required

Citizens of some countries need a visa to travel to Chile. If you come from a country that is not on the visa-exempt list, contact the Chilean embassy or consulate in your home country for details of the application process.

Requirements for Visa Application

When applying for a Chilean visa, you must have several supporting documents, such as:

- Copies of your passport pages, including personal information, issue/expiry date, and any previous visas.
- Your passport must be valid for at least six more months.
- Proof of legal status in your country of residence, if applicable (eg. if you are a Permanent Resident in a country other than your country of origin, include a copy of your PR card).

- It must be 4.5 x 4.5 cm (2 inches x 2 inches) in size

You have to attach the documents in PDF format on the online Chile visa application service. You must name the documents accordingly. For example, if you are attaching your flight reservation, name the document "YourLastNameFlightReservation".

Additionally, you must have originals of all the documents you uploaded when you visit the nearest Chile consulate to obtain your visa.

Chile Visa Fees

The fees can range from around $50 to $150, depending on your nationality and the type of visa you are applying for (a single entry visa is cheaper than a multiple entry visa, for example).

When you submit your online application, you will be informed about how much you have to pay.

However, the Chilean authorities do not require you to pay for the visa upfront. You only have to pay the Chile visa fee at the Chilean Consulate after you receive your visa. The Chile Consulate officials will affix your visa to your passport. You can use it to travel to Chile within 90 days.
